Workshop Session 1

Critical perspectives: Exploring the educator's identity

As an educator, have you ever considered how 'identity' is interwoven into your work? This session will encourage reflection on how your presence dictates your approach and receptivity with students. Opportunities for immediate application(s) will be discussed in an interactive forum.

Monday	February 11	9:00-10:30 a.m.	LIBR Room 204
Tuesday	February 12	2:30-4:00 p.m.	LIBR Room 204

Workshop Session 2

Critical perspectives: Micro-aggressions in academia

Have you ever witnessed or experienced a micro-aggression on campus? This session will examine varying levels of micro-aggressions as it corresponds with intent/impact. Opportunities for immediate application(s) will be discussed in an interactive forum.

Monday	March 4	9:00-10:30 a.m.	LIBR Room 204
Tuesday	March 5	2:30-4:00 p.m.	LIBR Room 204

Workshop Session 3

Critical perspectives: Assumptions on campus

Consider the impact of assumptions on perceptions and subsequent interactions with others. This session will allow you to converse in meaningful dialogues regarding miseducation and socialization. Opportunities for immediate application(s) will be discussed in an interactive forum.

Monday	April 1	9:00-10:30 a.m.	LIBR Room 204
Tuesday	April 2	2:30-4:00 p.m.	LIBR Room 204

Workshop Session 4

Critical perspectives: The university and social justice

Building on previous workshop discussions, contemplate your call to action for implementing socially just practices at the university. This session will prompt critical conversations regarding steps for progress. Opportunities for immediate application(s) will be discussed in an interactive forum.

Monday	May 6	9:00-10:30 a.m.	LIBR Room 204
Tuesday	May 7	2:30-4:00 p.m.	LIBR Room 204
