IMAGERY

BENEFITS

- Engages target audience
- Creates visual context
- Adds visual hierarchy to a page
- Affords strategic placement of secondary marks or icons to further reinforce a brand

CONSIDERATIONS

- Avoid text embedded in images
 - Consider using captions or other HTML text
- Inline images should have a maximum width of 300 px
 - Wider images will be cropped on smartphones
- Dynamically scaled images:
 - Marketing image under the masthead
 - Image-plus-text bucket

COLOR

BENEFITS

- Reinforces the brand
- Adds depth to the site
- Creates visual anchors for information on the page
- Color bars can group like content

- Starting points for defining a color palette:
 - Official university recruitment color palette
 - Established color palette of the brand
 - Sampled colors from selected imagery
- Color alone can not be used to convey information
- Employ a limited color palette

MASTHEAD

- Creates a bold first impression
- Persistent element across all pages and all devices
- Unites primary (logo/site title) and secondary (color/texture) brand elements in one space

- Imagery by default does not scale
- Background elements must not convey content, such as text or taglines
- Avoid choosing graphic elements that might obscure the site title or logo

BACKGROUND

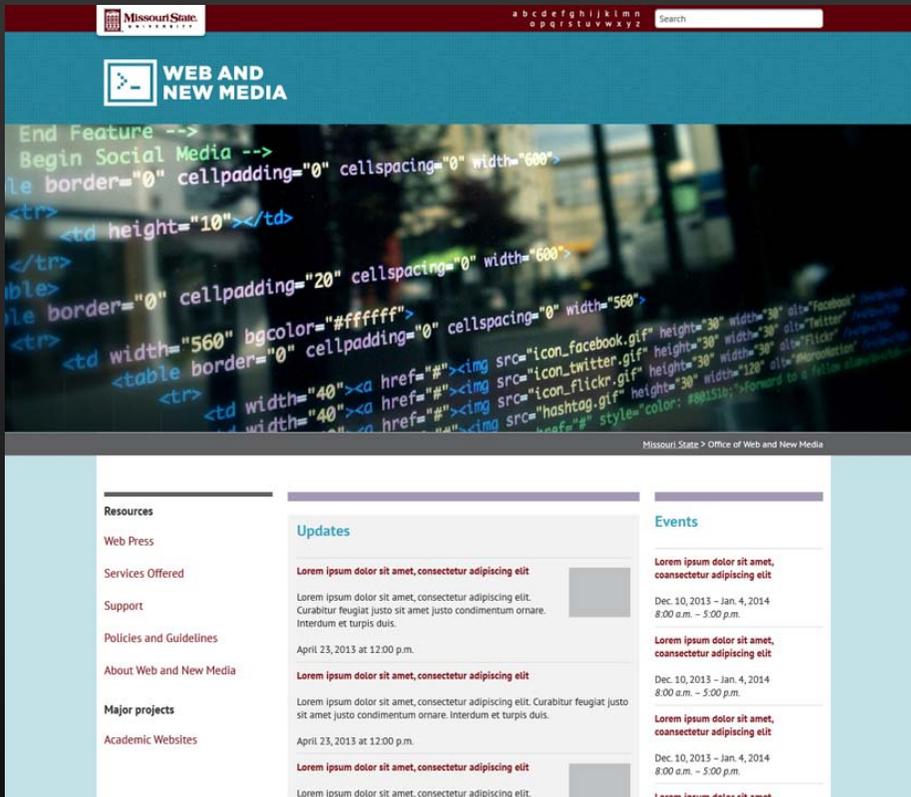

BENEFITS

- Adds further depth and dimension to the site
- Creates additional brand extension through color and texture

CONSIDERATIONS

- Does not display on smartphones
- Opt for subtle graphic elements to avoid competition with the primary content
 - Light colors
 - Repeating patterns
- Elements may not convey content

BEST PRACTICE

LAYOUT

BENEFITS

- Creates visual hierarchy
 - Promotes the primary takeaways and calls-to-action
 - Guides the visitor down a page and through the site
 - Affords different levels of engagement
- Adds context through supplemental content and imagery

- The “fold” should not dictate your layout
 - There is no one true fold in the mobile web
- The established flow of content should guide the layout
 - Consider a mobile-first/linear methodology to help prioritize content and calls-to-action
- Design to encourage scannability
